„The Champions“: World figure skating stars in the Swiss mountains

In the midst of the snowy Swiss mountains the Eisgala Davos presents «The Champions» on Friday, 10 and Saturday, 11 February 2012. It promises to be a magical show of current World and European champions.

On hand will be the world's current best pair skaters Aliona Savchenko/Robin Szolkowy and Tatiana Volosozhar/Maxim Trankov, gold and silver medalists at the 2011 World Championships in Moscow. These two pairs of skaters battle each other at international competitions for the coveted top prize of being the best. Both show off beautiful, engaging choreography and the highest level of difficulty in their jumps and lifts.

This year's mega-star at the Eisgala Davos comes from Japan – the current World Champion Miki Ando. Her style is considered emotional, tender, elegant and loose. In contrast, the charming European Champion Florent Amodio is considered the cool figure skating entertainer. The brash Frenchman with the Brazilian roots sets the ice on fire. Also the two most successful Swiss figure skaters, two-time World Champion Stéphane Lambiel and 2011 European Champion Sarah Meier, glide onto the ice.

A fantastic light show, video projections on the ice, plenty of acrobatics and entertainment make up the framework for the amazing athletic performances. There is also an additional delight for the spectators in Davos and those watching on TV: the usual perimeter bands will be dispensed with at the Vaillant Arena, allowing the viewer to be even closer to the happenings on the ice.

Most well known artists in „The Champions“ show:

- Sarah Meier (Switzerland): European Champion 2011, Swiss Athlete of the Year
- Miki Ando (Japan): World Champion 2007 & 2011
- Aljona Savchenko/Robin Szolkowy (Germany): Pair skating-World Champions 2008/2009/2011
- Tatiana Volosozhar/Maxim Trankov (Russia): Pair skating-World Silver Medalists 2011
